

!% # -! 3% IS USED IN THE AIRCRAFT MANU@ @ GIVES AN OVERVIEW OF THIS DOCUM @ à @

The European Association of Aerospace Industries (formerly ECM, now ASD) has produced a specification for aircraft documentation. This specification is known as AECMA Simplified English (SE). It deals with the language and writing style of the documentation.

for documentation that is written on the T 2200 civil aircraft) specification fdyxh vrphwklqj wr pryh ru wr eh lq the srvlwlrq 1

deactivate. Instead, you are recommended to use one of these: stop, disconnect, isolate.

The majority of the AECMA SE guide consists of a dictionary of keywords. The list of keywords contains both words that are approved (such as put) and words that are not approved (such as deactivate)

For each approved keyword, the dictionary specifies the part of speech for which it can be used. The meaning of

The drive is boring (drive refers to the act of travelling in a car). One word might have different interpretations. For example, the sentence ReplT a~ the/ dlnter Fct

AECMA SIMPLIFIED ENGLISH

Keyword (part of speech)	Assigned Meaning/ USE	APPROVED EXAMPLE	Not Acceptable
capable (adj)	CAN (v), APPROVED	THE POWER UNIT CAN SUPPLY 28 VDC. AN APPROVED PERSON MUST DO THE IMPORTANT CHECKS.	The power unit is capable of producing 28 VDC. Vital checks are to be carried out by a capable person.
CAPACITY (n)	The maximum quantity that something can hold or make	THE CAPACITY OF THE FIN FUEL TANK IS 564 LITERS.

